

TEACHING BOYS!

A growing body of evidence says that increasingly Canadian boys are disengaging from school and are lacking the single most important tool for lifelong success—the ability to read and write.

Discover solutions to these critical topics:

- What do trends say about educating boys, and especially certain sub-groups of boys?
- What interferes with boys' learning and school success?
- How to address the link between moving and learning?
- How to help boys regulate their emotions?
- To what degree do boys think in pictures and become overwhelmed with verbal instructions?
- How can school staff communicate better with boys and help them develop relational skills and socially responsibility?

Your presenter will inform and inspire:

“Barry MacDonald’s engaging presentation was both thought provoking and challenging—one of our most successful Board-Wide Pedagogical Days ever!!!”

Mark Sutherland, Coordinator
Educational Services Central Quebec School Board

“I had the pleasure of hearing Barry MacDonald present at an EQAO symposium in Toronto to a standing room only crowd. His message was super positive for both boys and girls. My copy of Boy Smarts has been well used, and is still borrowed on a regular basis by friends and colleagues.”

Chris Conley, Executive Lead
Barrie Region MISA Professional Network Centre
